— WHY THIS EVENT MATTERS

Toxic stress, rising suicide rates among Black men and boys, teenagers and young adults, and increasing cases of Alzheimer's and dementia are pressing but often ignored issues. This conference will uncover the connections between stress, mental health, and cognitive decline while exploring culturally relevant solutions for healing and resilience.

Healing & Hope

Empowering our community through knowledge and support

Topics include:

- The impact of chronic stress on mental and brain health
- Suicide prevention strategies for Black men and boys
- The connection between mental health and cognitive decline
- Community-driven approaches to healing and support

Join us in raising awareness, breaking stigmas, and building a path toward better mental and brain health for our community.

Who Should Attend

Empowering Change-Makers & Community Leaders

CALIFORNIA
BLACK HEALTH NETWORK

— CONFERENCE AUDIENCE

CBHN's Virtual Behavioral and Mental Health Conference, "Hidden Crises—Stress, Mental Health & Brain Health in the Black Community," aims to educate, inform, and empower practitioners, community members, thought leaders, policymakers, researchers, and individuals who are committed to protecting and expanding behavioral healthcare access in California to address health disparities and promote equitable healthcare solutions.

Attendees will include:

Behavioral Health Professionals

Providing culturally responsive care in under-resourced communities.

Community-Based Organizations

Serving Black, Latinx, immigrant, and low-income communities with hidden or unrecognized mental and brain health challenges.

Public Health Officials & County Health Departments

Seeking to understand health disparities and root causes and improve program and service delivery.

Researchers & Data Analysts

Focusing on racial disparities, chronic stress physiology, and cognitive health data and outcomes.

State & Local Policymakers

Working on behavioral health policy initiatives.

Why Attend?

The CBHN Mental Health Summit is a unique opportunity to connect, learn, and collaborate with leaders, advocates, and community members dedicated to advancing mental health equity for Black Californians. Gain actionable insights, build meaningful partnerships, and be part of a movement for lasting change.
